

YOUR VIBE IS WHAT > THEY BUY

PORTFOLIO

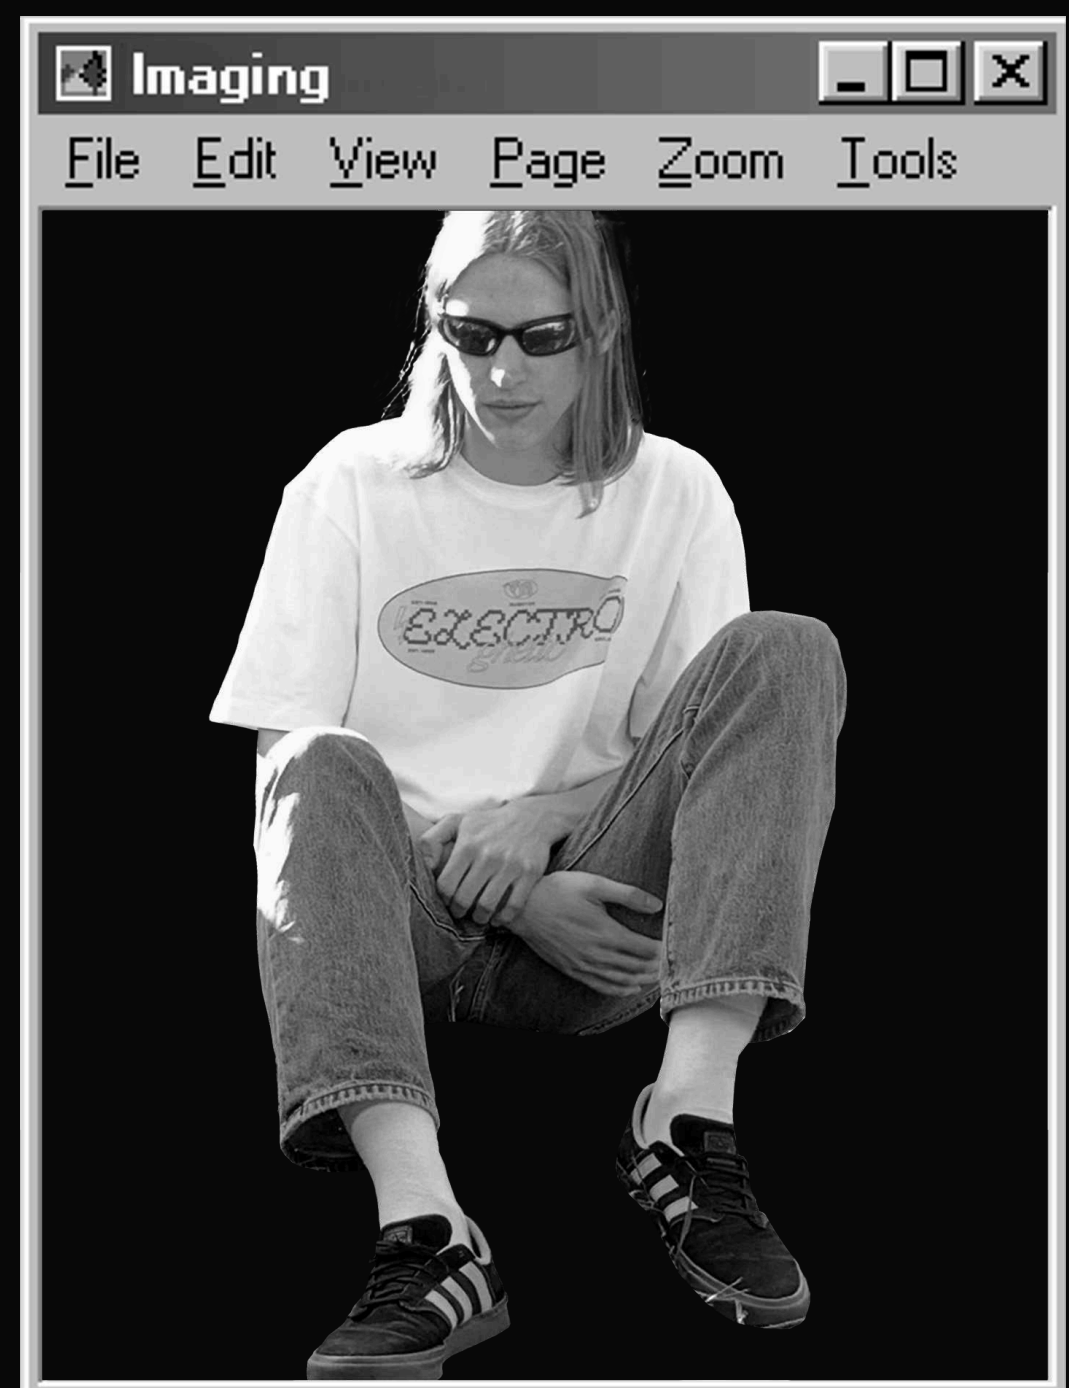

UX COPY - SEO - DESIGN - MARKETING

HELLO WORLD

It's me, Max. I'm a creative copywriter. What I do isn't just about the right words, but the sense of personality and emotion behind them. My core principle? I just try to keep it real and experiment. I like playing with different styles and perspectives, trying to be a friend with my audience.

#FUN_FACT: Middle school was the point when I started using Arch Linux and hosting game servers. That's how I easily got my first job as a junior sysadmin, later at 18

me awkwardly posing for a local merch :)

COLD MAILING

was how I landed my first writing gig for a SaaS startup, back when I was 19. Those were the days when I was studying anthropology and curating local art events. It wasn't until I turned 22 that I started working with a US-based SEO team. Two years later, I moved into a larger marketing agency (USA, CND, AUS)

CAN WRITING BE ART?

I'd say so. Writing becomes art when it hooks you. When you can feel there's something about the author and his message. The same goes for marketing. Copywriting, like art, isn't just about making things look cool. It's about expressing your values, and reaching the right crowd.

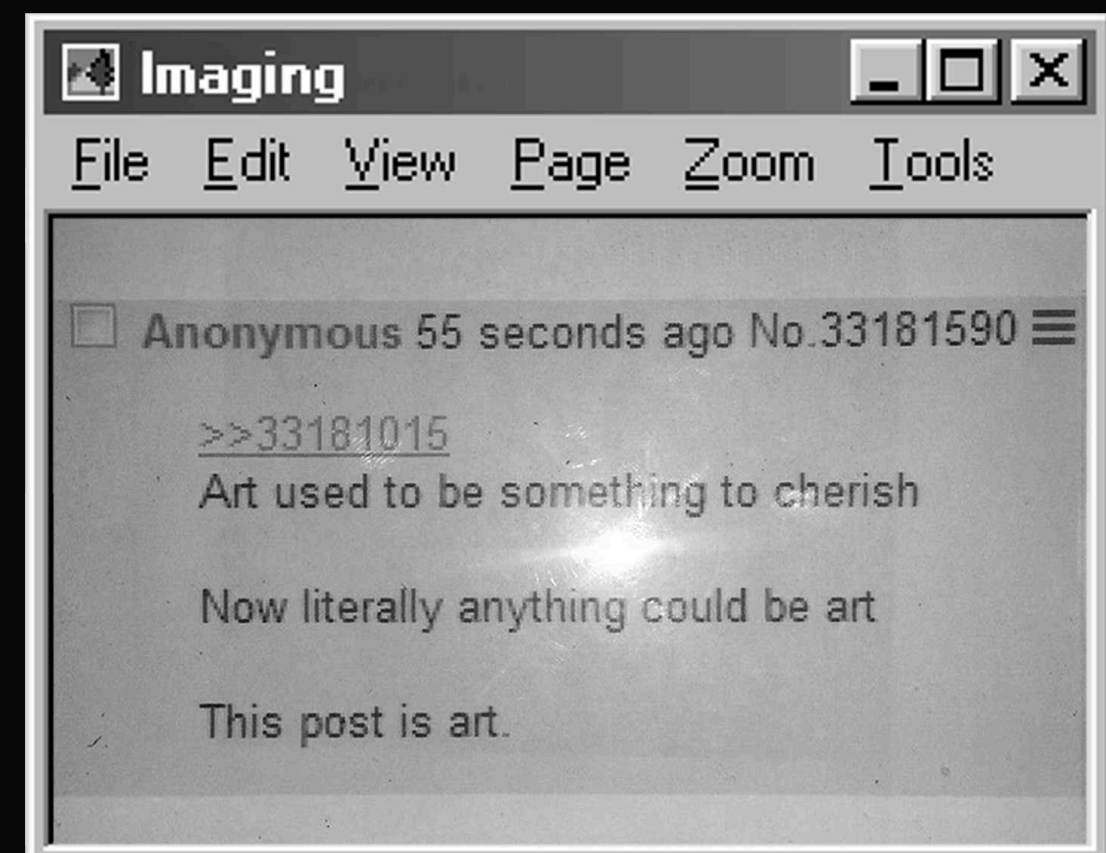

Solitaire

Magic

Bible -

this 4chan pic was sold on eBay for $91,000 (in 2014)

“I already am eating from the trash can all the time. The name of this trash can is ideology. The material force of ideology makes me not see what I am effectively eating.”

Slavoj Žižek

SALES & IDEOLOGY

What Žižek's getting at is that ideology isn't just a random set of beliefs, but rather a complex social institution. Following J. Lacan, he argues that the way we see the reality, our tastes and principles, are based entirely on institutional influence of different circles – family, state, religion, social media, movies, art, etc. In other words, we can't really break free from ideology – we can only swap one set of preferences for another. Same with consuming. People don't stop buying stuff, they just switch to something they think is better.

Cool marketers, as well, don't just push products, they sell a whole worldview, creating a fact-based ideology people tend to believe in. Artists do the same thing, just in a different lane. Making art is about creating a personal truth, a subjective reflection on the reality. Marketers take that and make it feel like the only truth that matters. Is writing for marketing art? Of course not. Sometimes, copywriting is just about being clear and convincing. But as long as your text gets personal, it probably could be.

THANKS FOR READING

Like my style? Seems we've got a match, 'cause a cool artsy team is just what I'm looking for. Let's make something awesome together! Text me on Telegram or send me an email <3

telegram

gmail